Catch a glimpse of life on the prairie through the lens of women who grew up on or raised their families on farms in German-Russian Country. This Tri-County Tourism Alliance historic preservation project called, "Women Behind the Plow," honors the unrecognized contribution of women who grew up or lived on farms in Logan County, McIntosh County and Emmons County.

Many stories of farming prior to rural electricians bringing electricity to the sometimes-harsh prairies have never been told. How did these women learn about providing for families, sewing clothes or crocheting the scarce niceties in their homes? In addition to being wives and mothers, many were farm hands, healers, teachers, housekeepers and artists. They kept traditional holidays and religious customs. Unseen and unrecognized many of these women did what they had to without recognizing the importance of their contribution to the economic growth of the state.

A beautiful companion piece to Ewiger Saatz (sold out), this book is 12x12, full color and loaded with photographs and additional information about life on the prairie. Order yours today.
